During the Battle of Williamsburg, General Magruder's men were key in delaying Union troops on their way to Richmond. The fertile farmland, later served as a storage and shipping point for cattle in both World War I and II.

The course served as a host for the qualifying tournament of the 2004 USGA Women's Open along with several other premier Four Ball tournaments in Virginia. The entire course was rebuilt in 2009 with new tees, fairways, greens, bunkers, cart paths, a state-of-the art practice facility, and remodeled clubhouse. The club re-opened in June of 2010 as Williamsburg Golf Club, the leading private golf club on the peninsula.
